

THE 7 QUESTIONS I ASK BEFORE I BUILD YOU AI

STEAL THEM BEFORE A VENDOR RUNS THEIRS ON YOU →

QUESTION 1

WHERE DOES THE TIME ACTUALLY GO?

Not what's annoying. What eats hours, day in and day out.

Owners usually guess this wrong. The calendar tells the truth.

QUESTION 2

CAN YOU SAY IT IN ONE SENTENCE?

"Read the intake email, pull five fields, file them, tell the manager." That's buildable.

If you can't say the process out loud, nobody can build it.

QUESTION 3

HOW OFTEN DOES IT RUN?

Twice a year: keep your money. Fifty times a week: now we're talking.

Repetition times judgment. The Automation Matrix decides this one.

QUESTION 4

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN IT'S WRONG?

Every build I ship has a rule for this. Too many problems and the work goes back to a person.

No checkpoint, no build.

QUESTION 5

WHAT'S THE MONTHLY METER?

Model calls. The platform. Storage. Upkeep.

The build price gets the attention. The meter is what you live with.

QUESTION 6

WHAT HAPPENS AFTER IT FINISHES?

An answered call is worthless if the lead dies in an inbox.

Where does the output land? Who finds out?

What happens after close?

QUESTION 7

WOULD A PERSON STILL DO IT BETTER?

Low volume, real judgment, real relationships:
keep the human.

Some of our best discovery calls end with "don't build anything."

THE TELL

A GOOD VENDOR ASKS BEFORE QUOTING

If the pitch jumps straight to a demo and a price, you're buying their product.

These questions are how you buy a result instead.
